Cotton Ends Best Week With Gain of 7 Dollars a Bale

Prices Mount Steadily From Low of October 8th

ARKANSAS PLEDGES

Contributes 400,000 Bales to 7,000,000 Southern Holding Pool

BULLETIN
DALLAS.—(P)—Nathan Adams, Dallas banker and sponsor of the Southern banker's plan for holding one-fourth of this year's cotton crop until next July, said Monday pledges had been received from Texas bankers indicating that the plan would receive more than ample support for its success.

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Cotton of this year's crop reported prior to October 18 was gained by the Census Bureau Monday to be 9,498,044 against 9,254,000 at the same time last year. Arkansas gainings to October 18 this year are 701,737.

Cotton closed last week with an advance of -3 to $3.50 a bale over the previous seven days, and an increase of more than $7 a bale from the low point reached October 8.

Occasional trading developed declines of from $1 to $1.50 but in every case the lost ground was regained as cotton moved steadily on toward higher ground.

With weakened security prices, uncertainty in industry, and new low rates of interest for savings accounts in banks, low-priced cotton has become perhaps the greatest investment field for Southern capital this winter—the market reflecting an accrual of millions of dollars invested in cotton for this year.

State Quota Completed
Over the week-end, B. A. Lynch of Blytheville, president of the Arkansas Bankers' association, announced that this state has completed its banking pledges of 400,000 bales, for the 7,000,000-bale pool jointly guaranteed by the Farm Board, the American and Mid-South co-operatives, and Southern bankers, at their New Orleans conference two weeks ago.

The banks and the co-operative have completed arrangements for holding 3,500,000 bales until July 31, 1932, or later, and the Farm Board has guaranteed to hold similar stocks off the market until that date.

Federal Review
The weekly review of the federal Department of Agriculture, received in Hope Monday, had this to say about cotton:

"The cotton market during the period October 17th to 23rd witnessed an advancing tendency coupled with a bettering tone. Quotations October 23rd were about 72 points higher than those of October 18th.

Both domestic and foreign demand for spot cotton was said to have been fair to good during the past week with numerous inquiries for white cottons in lengths 7-8 inch up to and including 1 inch. Demand was said to have come largely from merchants for either fulfillment of older commitments or for investment purposes.

Inquiries coming from manufacturers were also quite numerous but in view of the relative high asking basis by sellers transactions were somewhat restricted. The present prevailing asking basis by sellers was said to be the highest for the season so far.

Southern mill centers said a fair demand prevailed for spot cotton with the bulk of the transactions covering middling and strict middling 7-8 inch up to 1 inch inclusive. Merchants were said to be offering more freely for deferred shipments. Some reports said that the asking basis for southern mill business was a trifle easier. According to the Bureau of Census there were operated at some time during the month of September in the cotton growing states 16,800,000 cotton spinning spindles compared with 17,100,000 last September.

Short on Cotton
New England mill centers said a fair inquiry prevailed for raw cotton but that certain manufacturers were staying out of the raw cotton market pending more activity in the cotton cloth market. There was said to be a very little raw cotton available for immediate needs in the New England states with the tendency on the part of sellers to ask a higher basis than the week before. According to the Bureau of Census there were operated at some time during September in the New England States 7,400,000 cotton spinning spindles compared with 7,900,000 a year ago for the same month.

Dry goods centers said that the tone of the cotton cloth markets was somewhat improved with quotations in some basis a trifle higher compared those week before.

Heavy Buying From East
One of the features was the continuing heavy buying from the East.

She'll Quit Stage to Wed Peer

Marriage into the British peerage means the end of stage life for Adele Astaire (above), Broadway musical comedy star, who has confirmed reports of her engagement to Lord Charles Cavandish (below), young son of the Duke of Devonshire. She has announced that she will retire from the theater after their wedding, probably next spring or summer. The actress and the youthful peer met while she was playing in London.

County Lines Are Abolished By Auto

Public Finance Men Recommend Wide-Sweeping Changes

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The automobile and the telephone have destroyed the dividing lines of the smaller political units such as counties and townships, and the state governments ought to take over many of their powers and eliminate a costly duplication of tax-expenditure, 11 public finance experts told the United States Chamber of Commerce here Sunday.

These men were ordered some time ago to make a study of local government since the advent of modern machines, and to report their recommendations for greater efficiency and economy.

In relating their report, the Chamber of Commerce said:

"As an effective means of reducing governmental costs, the group urges public consideration of the overlapping and duplications now existing in local government.

"It appears absurd to preserve in the present day such archaic geographical limits for school districts, townships and counties, as were suitable for rural communities in an age devoid of improved highways, automobiles, and telephones. Similarly it appears equally absurd and costly to permit artificial city and county boundaries to cut into numerous jurisdictions in a single homogeneous area.

"In this connection state governments should consider the advisability of assuming a larger proportion of the performance of certain services now handled by both state and local governments, such as highways, education, public health and the like."

1 Day More Grace For Capone in Chi

Due to Begin 11-Year Federal Sentence in Leavenworth

CHICAGO.—(P)—Al Capone, Chicago's No. 1 Public Enemy, will spend another night in the county jail here pending a ruling by the federal circuit court of appeals on a move for a supersedeas bond set for 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Capone who was sentenced to 11 years imprisonment in Leavenworth penitentiary Saturday on conviction of evading federal income taxes, won a 24-hour delay previously on an appeal bond hearing after Judge Wilkison had ordered him taken to the penitentiary immediately.

Reduction of War Debts a Possibility Following Parley

Hoover Agreed to Linking Allied Obligations With Reparations

LAVAL IS PLEASED

French Premier Obtains Everything He Hoped to Achieve by Visit

BULLETIN
NEW YORK.—(P)—Premier Laval, of France, and his daughter arrived here Monday from Washington to make a sightseeing tour of the American metropolis.

WASHINGTON.—Commitments of a far reaching character—one of them opening the way to reduction, if not cancellation, of the $11,000,000,000 of war debts owed the United States—were made by President Hoover in the historic conversation with Premier Laval of France which was concluded Sunday.

This was learned Sunday following the issuance by the White House of a joint statement in which Mr. Hoover and M. Laval set forth the results of their conferences.

The statement, touched in general, frequently vague terms, is freighted with hidden meanings which only the experts in diplomatic esoterics are competent to read between the lines. Resort to such an expert who is conversant with the war debts owed the United States in the communiqué are hinting at, produces this interpretation and resume:

Six Major Points
1. Abandoning the policies of his predecessors and his own policy hitherto, President Hoover agrees to the linking of the Allied war debts with German reparations and in event of the reduction of reparations, agrees to recognition of the German right to settlement of war debts owed the United States with a view to their eventual reduction, if not cancellation.

2. The president will make no move for an extension of the Hoover moratorium which expires June 30, next.

3. The initiative for extension of the moratorium and revision of reparations is to be taken by Germany, which presumably will ask at an early date for appointment of the commission of experts provided by the Young plan to examine capacity of Germany to pay the reparations fixed by the Young committee. To this procedure M. Laval agreed.

4. The president abandons his project to obtain a reduction of armaments as a condition precedent to reduction of war debts and accepts the French thesis that armaments can be reduced only to the extent that nations are assured of security from attack.

5. France and the United States will co-operate to maintain the gold standard and to assist other nations in maintaining or returning to that standard of exchange.

6. The raid by French banks on the gold reserve of the United States in the last six weeks has been halted by M. Laval who also agreed that in the future there should be no withdrawals of gold from this country except after consultation between the Bank of France and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

No Polish Corridor Talk
In addition to the communiqué the White House issued a statement denying a published report that Mr. Hoover had proposed to M. Laval a revision of the Polish corridor provisions of the Versailles treaty.

"The president has made no suggestions of any such character," said the statement.

Although the White House conversations were concluded Friday night the preparation of the joint statement.

To Test Martial Law in Oil Fields

Champlin Refining Co. Takes Oklahoma Appeal to Supreme Court

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The Champlin Refining company, Oklahoma oil concern, Monday brought to the United States Supreme Court an attack on Governor Murray's use of troops in forcing an oil well shutdown.

Governor Murray's action was started in a movement which spread throughout the Southwest, invoking martial law or near martial law in controlling both oil and cotton production.

Oklahoma and Texas put into actual effect the use of armed troops to curtail petroleum output, and bring the price up.

Hurley To Oppose Filipino Freedom

Secretary of War Declares Himself on Far East Policy

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Opposition to Philippine independence until certain reforms are accomplished was expressed to President Hoover by Secretary Hurley Monday, upon his return from a visit to the islands.

Senator Hawes, of Missouri, took a favorable position for Filipino independence during his visit there last spring, expressing himself openly at native meetings, to the consternation of American domiciled in the islands.

Filipino independence is one of the most questions confronting the American administration in the Far East. The islands were acquired from Spain by the United States, and a native rebellion was pacified, on the understanding that more or less complete independence would be achieved under an American protectorate. The islands have their native legislature, but under an American governor.

England Banker Held Up and Robbed Saturday

ENGLAND, Ark.—(P)—Wayne Dickerson, cashier of the Bank of England, reported to officers that he was held up in the bank late Saturday night by three men who forced him to surrender between $800 and $1000 given him by R. Sakon, England merchant.

A sack of money also was taken from the vault. Dickerson said, but the amount was not known.

Julia Chester To Launch Campaign For New Hospital

Public Fund Will Complete Contract on New Building

WILL BEGIN NOV. 2

Hospital Also Invites Furnishing of Individual Guest Rooms

A public subscription campaign to raise $1,500 for the building fund of Julia Chester hospital will be launched Monday, November 2, it was announced Monday by C. W. Wellman, president of the board of the Hope & Hempstead County Hospital association.

The new Julia Chester hospital building is now under construction on the association's property on South Main street, being jointly financed by the association and the contractors, the Hempstead County Lumber company, a division of the Ozark-Grayson corporation.

Mr. Chapman explained Monday that it will take $1,500 to complete the hospital association's end of the contract, and to pay the cost of removal from the present building at Second and Walnut streets.

Julia Chester is a community-owned hospital, directed by a public board, and administered by a woman's executive board selected from the various churches of the city.

The city-county hospital association conducts a drive every fall for memberships, and will make a particularly strong appeal this season on the basis of the new building, into which it will move before the end of autumn.

At the same time, the hospital is offering the honor of furnishing individual guest rooms to patrons about town, the furnishings of a hospital room costing anywhere from $100 to $200. Such gifts are to commemorate the name of the donor, to whom the particular hospital room will be dedicated for the life of the building.

Tourists Collide, One Is Fined Here

Municipal Court's First Case Involves New York and Illinois

A tourist wreck in which a car from New York hit another from Illinois, injuring a woman, was the first important case reported to the Hope Municipal court at its opening session in the city hall Monday morning.

George Levy, of New York City, was fined $25 and costs on a reckless driving charge preferred by the state, represented by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney John Vesey. Testimony before Municipal Judge U. A. Gentry showed that Mr. Levy rounded the dead-end curve just east of Hope on highway No. 67 Sunday afternoon and rammed a car in which Mr. and Mrs. William Baldwin were returning home to Olney, Ill. Mrs. Baldwin suffered painful injuries, and her husband swore out information to the prosecuting attorney's office.

Judge Gentry levied the minimum fine of $25 under the state statute against reckless driving.

Two city cases before the court were for drunkenness. Orby Thornton, who was fined $10 and costs, a total of $11, and C. W. Keen, an habitual offender, who was fined $25 and costs, a total of $26. Both had pleaded guilty.

Costs levied on city cases in the municipal court are only $1, this charge being made under a state law which directs that it be turned over to the Bureau of Criminal Identification.

The personnel of the municipal court was completed over the week-end with the appointment by the city council of Miss Annie Jean Walker as clerk of the court. She assumed her duties Monday.

Judge Gentry held the first session of court at 9 o'clock Monday morning, and was to hold a second session at 3 o'clock afternoon.

Aspiring Musicians Take Their Lessons by Radio

DETROIT.—(P)—People who don't like to be seen carrying musical instruments are learning to play by radio in their own homes.

Following inquiry by a Michigan school superintendent as to the possibility of using radio to direct bands and orchestras a course of radio instruction was offered.

The Michigan department of public instruction and the University of Michigan cooperated.

Free lesson booklets were distributed to adults and children in radio-equipped schools. The booklets gave written instructions to be followed during the broadcasts.

Evangelist Tent at Jonesboro Is Burned

The Rev. Mr. Jeffers Says His Enemies Did It, and Officers Agree With Him—Traveling Preacher Was Central Figure of Church "War" in Craighead County a Few Weeks Ago

JONESBORO.—(P)—Enemies of his revival meeting were charged by the Rev. Joe Jeffers, Baptist evangelist, with the burning early Monday of his tent tabernacle in which he started the services that led to national guardsmen being called out to prevent bloodshed in the bitter church controversy of a few weeks ago.

Incendiarism is suspected by Jeffers. The loss, estimated at $4,500, was uninsured, Jeffers said, but in an address to a handful of followers at the ruins of the tent, he announced he would discuss the building of an indoor meeting place at his service Monday night.

The church fight a few weeks ago grew out of Jeffers' effort to oust the Rev. Dow Heard from the pastorate of the First Baptist church here. The itinerant evangelist charged the Rev. Mr. Heard and leading laymen with being "worldly" and remarks from his pulpit precipitated a series of fights in the tent-service congregation, resulting in the arrest of leading business and professional men and some of the evangelist's followers.

Farmer Kills Six of His Relatives

Two Uncles, An Aunt and Three Cousins Slain at Homes

WAGNER, S. C.—(P)—George Jackson, about 35, Aiken county farmer, Sunday shot and killed six members of his family.

Jackson, a resident of the Bethel section about six miles from here, then fled, accompanied by a small daughter.

Sheriff J. P. Howard and two deputies attempted to trace the slayer by the bare foot tracks of the little girl in the soft ground near the scene of the killings. At nightfall Jackson had not been apprehended.

Armed with a shotgun and a pistol, Jackson, described as an "eccentric character," first went to the home of Darl Jackson and killed two uncles, an aunt and three cousins.

He then proceeded to the home of Herman Jackson, a cousin and shot him to death. No other member of Herman Jackson's immediate family was injured.

Hamp and Hayes Jackson, uncles of the slayer.

Mrs. Darl Jackson, an aunt, Melvin and Bill Jackson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Darl Jackson, Herman Jackson, a cousin of George Jackson, were also slain.

Darl Jackson was the only person at his home to escape the slayer. He said that George Jackson, his nephew, came to the house about 1 p. m. and talked for several minutes in a friendly fashion.

Without warning, Darl Jackson said, his nephew exclaimed:

"I am of a good mind to kill every one of you!"

He then jumped up and began shooting. Hamp and Hayes Jackson were shot first. Then one of the cousins fell fatally wounded.

One of the younger men fled across a nearby field. George Jackson followed and shot him.

The slayer returned to find Mrs. Darl Jackson seeking to aid her fatally wounded son. She was slain as she was giving her son a drink of water.

Hamp Jackson, seriously wounded, meanwhile had dragged himself to the edge of the porch at the house. The wounded man was shot again and killed.

From the Darl Jackson home, the killer went to Herman Jackson's house and killed him.

The score was 3 to 1 in favor of the locals.

Student Pays Tuition With Jug of Silver

COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—(P)—Virgil Jones, Leon county youth seeking admittance to Texas A. & M. college as a freshman, must have heard about the movement to popularize silver as a medium of exchange.

He reached the campus from his home town of Buffalo luging a suitcase which contained, in addition to his clothes, a half-gallon jar filled to the rim with silver dollars.

Voted Down 13-1 To Ignore Order to Quit Manchuria

Eastern Power Holds Its Solitary Vote Makes Order Invalid

DEALINE IS NOV. 16

Japs Declare China Can't Control Bandits of Interior

TOKYO, Japan.—(P)—The Japanese government Monday issued a statement saying that in view of the League of Nations Council's failure to obtain a unanimous vote on the resolution calling for the evacuation of Japanese troops from Manchuria by November 16, the action was not binding in any way whatever.

The council voted 13 to 1 on the resolution, the opposing vote being cast by the Japanese delegate.

The Jap Position
Japan has steadily declared that it would not withdraw from Manchuria before China had guaranteed Japanese lives and property.

The requested guarantee is one of five fundamental principles upon which Japan has said she would negotiate for a peaceable settlement of the Manchurian disturbances. The five principles were stated simultaneously with assurances that Tokyo would endeavor to persuade China to enter into direct negotiations.

Direct negotiation, it was said, probably would lead to the beginning of troop withdrawals and the Chinese authorities be able to assume responsibility for proper policing of the districts.

Policy in Manchuria
Besides the demand that Japanese lives and property be protected in Manchuria before troops can be withdrawn, the other principles laid down by Japan are that the two countries mutually pledge not to aggress against each other's territorial integrity; China must abandon all forms of anti-Japanese propaganda; including the boycott; China must agree to eliminate competition with Manchurian railways and China must recognize existing treaty rights, including the Korean and Japanese concessions.

Japanese troops and citizens, spokesmen said, are in constant danger from bandit bands and marauding Chinese soldiers.

It was further explained that while Tokyo is prepared to negotiate with responsible Chinese authorities such step is becoming increasingly difficult due to the reorganization now under way in the Chinese government.

Six Men Hurt In Brief Prison Riot

Long Island City Guard Beaten and Five Prisoners Stabbed

NEW YORK.—(P)—Five prisoners were stabbed and another beaten Sunday in a short-lived riot at city prison at Long Island City. Harry O'Hara, a guard, was rescued from the knives and fists of rioters by some of the trusted prisoners.

An argument between Benjamin Rocowski, 20, of Jamaica, and Anthony Vito, 20, of College Point, over a rival belonging to the latter was said by officials to be the immediate cause of the outbreak.

Two knives crudely fashioned from prison supplies, found in the corridor in which the rioting occurred, and three similar knives found later in cells led authorities to believe that a general jail break had been planned.

The dispute between Vito and Rocowski flared shortly after chapel as the men were marching back to their cells. Their quarrel aroused fellow prisoners, and in the scuffle Rocowski suffered a fractured skull and minor wounds. With Vito, and three others less seriously hurt, he was taken to a hospital. Rocowski's condition was said to be serious.

Troops Called In Bridge War Again

Gov. Murray Moves to Anticipate U. S. Court Injunction

ATOKA, Okla.—(P)—Moving to make effective any action of the United States district court, Governor Murray early Monday ordered national guard troops to proceed against the Durant "front" of the Red River bridge "war."

The Red River Bridge company's application for an injunction to close the free bridge between Durant, Oklahoma and Denison, Texas, was docketed to come up before Judge John Pollock at Muskogee Monday.

They were taken to Texarkana Monday for hearing.

Romance of Everyday

THE Pacific freight steamer that got off its course in a gale and passed an isolated coral island where some happy descendants of a roving beach comber of the old days live in dreamy peace, untouched by the world's alarms, gave us a new experience for which the ordinary mortal, probably, would give several years of his life.

The dream of an island paradise in the South Seas is an old one—as old, at least, as Drake and Magellan. Very few of us, any more, even dream of living in such a place; but still, it is a dream that we would like to visit one, some day, if the gods could be so kind. And these sailors had that ancient wish fulfilled.

But perhaps, when all is said and done, it is just as well that we can't do it. To dream about romance is one thing; to pump it into it in solid reality, is quite another, and the sad fact is that most of us wouldn't recognize it if we saw it.

Romance, and adventure, and such fanciful things as South Sea paradises, have very little objective reality. They exist within us, or not at all. If we have eyes to see them, we can find them on every side, even in a modern city or a drowsy little country town. If we haven't it would do us precious little good to go far afield in search of them.

All of this is more or less familiar to anyone who has stopped to think about it. Yet it is easily forgotten; when we envy the men who wander the sea lanes, and touch at exotic islands and outlandish seaports, we are really longing, not for a wider horizon but for better eyesight.

If we could see things more clearly we would discover that the ordinary, hum-drum routine of daily living is packed with the stuff we dream about. The threads of a dozen romances will be crossed in any street car that trundles downtown. Any shop, any office, contains enough stories to keep Balzac busy for a lifetime. Gallantry, struggle, courage, idealism—life is prodigal with them, here as elsewhere.

An old, instead of yearning for distant voyages, we might hope simply for clearer vision. If we had it we would forget the South Sea Island.

Philippines and Trade

COINCIDENT with Secretary of War Hurley's return to the United States after a visit to the Philippines for the purpose of getting first hand information upon which to base an opinion on the question of whether or not independence will serve the best interests of the islands, there is issued a report on trade between the United States and the Philippines which throws an interesting light on the issue.

It is shown by this report that in the 32 years since the islands became a possession of the United States, they have had the favorable end in trade relations with this country.
 The total favorable trade balance to the credit of the Philippines in that period has been $381,194,000. That is the excess of exports from the Philippines to the United States over imports from the United States.

If the islands were to be granted independence there would certainly result a change in the tariff arrangement between the islands and this country. It has been suggested that in the event of independence the islands should continue to enjoy the tariff concessions which they now have. Although not all products of the islands are admitted to the United States duty free, they are granted concessions which give them a distinct trade advantage over the territories which produce similar materials. That this advantage is recognized is evidenced by the desire of the island business men that this favorable relation be continued.

It is improbable, however, that in the event of independence being granted the islands the United States would continue these trade concessions. Adding to the tariff barriers between the United States and the islands would certainly have an effect upon their trade relations. Each might lose by it, but the record of the past indicates that the Philippines would be the heavier loser. It is an important economic factor for the islands to consider in their agitation for severance of the ties with this country.—Jonesboro Evening Sun.

A Gangster Confesses

IN the days before Al Capone became a scandal in the sight of decent citizenship, a man named John Torrio was the head man of Chicago's most powerful gangs. Torrio got painfully shot, some years ago, and retired; but he emerged from retirement the other day long enough to tell a newspaper reporter that being a racketeer is a losing proposition.

Every man's hand, said Torrio, is against you if you are a gangster. Sooner or later you run into what Capone has run into; or, if that doesn't happen, you run into what Hymie Weiss and Dion O'Bannon and Jack Zuta ran into, which is several shades worse. All in all, concluded the former gangster, it simply doesn't pay.—El Dorado News.

The Age-Old Trick

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—News of a plot
 hatching in the west to plot
 the next election into the House of Representatives, leaves the capital undisturbed but reminds again that you can do a lot of tricks with the electoral college.

The idea is to elect states of independent electors in various states who would vote neither for the Republican nor the Democratic candidate but would have enough electoral votes to prevent either from obtaining the majority essential for election. Then, according to the promoters of the fantastic scheme, 25 western states, each with a single presidential vote in the House, could elect a president who would be friendly to western interests and not subservient to the financially and industrially dominant east.

A hint for this can be predicted with considerable assurance. The possibility that some such trick might sometime work and cause all sorts of excitement and confusion is what makes the story interesting.
 It is quite possible to imagine the lack of a majority in the college and a subsequent election in the House. The prospect was widely imagined, in fact, as recently as the year 1924 when the late Senator La Follette became a third party candidate. There is not now any discernible movement for a third party effort in 1932; but the election is likely to be so close that it wouldn't take very many electoral votes to prevent a majority.

ONCE an election is thrown into the House there is likely to be a lot of fun. The Republicans have a majority in the House delegations from 28 states, the Democrats in 21 delegations. One delegation, that of Montana, is divided between a Republican and one Democrat.
 Thus, a very few western Republican congressmen from only three states could block the election by the House of any Republican candidate not agreeable to them, holding a balance of power roughly corresponding to that which group of independent or third party electors might wield in the electoral college.

In order to avoid the almost unthinkable mess which probably would result from failure of the House to choose a president such a group of insurgents doubtless would eventually vote for one or the other of the two major party candidates if unable to jam through a favorite of its own. In case of no majority and no choice by the House, however, the duties of the president would be taken over by a vice president who meanwhile would have been elected by the Senate.
 The Senate, if you must know,
 would only have to elect by a majority vote of its members and inasmuch as the Senate is proportionately much more insurgent than the House it might offer the most hope for those plotters who now think it's a grand idea to throw the election into the House.

THE electoral college system has been attacked because it provides faulty proportional representation, but an election by the House is far worse from that standpoint. It is often complained, for instance, that Nevada has one elector for every 26,000 inhabitants and New York only one for every 320,000, with similar inequalities between large and small states caused by the fact that an elector is allotted for every senator and every representative. Also, that if a candidate carries, say New York, by 1,000,000 votes to his opponent's 999,999 the latter gets no credit for the 999,999 in the electoral college because a full slate is elected on a unit rule basis.

It is consequently possible for a candidate to receive a plurality of the popular vote and still lose. That has happened two or three times,
 the last victim being Grover Cleveland in 1888. But when the House votes for a president—as it did last in 1824—there are 13 smaller states each with three representatives or less which become just as important as the 19 largest states which have more than 10 times their population. The number of representatives averages about nine to a state and there are 28 states which are now entitled to eight or fewer.

Restraint, Cheerfulness Explained By Schwab

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Restraint
 cheerfulness, regarding the future of business featured the address of Charles M. Schwab Friday at the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute.
 Although recognizing that "we have a real depression," the speaker declared the country had been through "perilous periods" in times past and had, always, emerged to a prosperity greater than ever before. He believed "history will repeat itself." Schwab is president of the institute.
 "The lesson is that we cannot longer ignore the economy of other countries," Schwab said. "In other de-pressions we could forget about the hard times in other countries. Then we were a debtor nation and largely self-sufficient. Today we are a creditor nation and the prosperity of our international neighbors is necessary to our well being. We must promote better economic relationships among nations, and we must declare a permanent moratorium on national jin-goes."

Texas Bank Head Kills Self at Brownfield

BROWNFIELD, Tex.—(AP)—Taking
 the dark trail which a brother reached in similar fashion, several months ago, Andrew A. Copeland, about 35, a former vice president of the Brownfield State Bank, shot and fatally wounded himself in his home here early Saturday. He died about three hours later without regaining consciousness.
 A brother, Morgan L. Copeland,
 then president of the South Plains Bankers Association and cashier at the state bank here, shot and killed himself soon after walking into the bank the morning of last May 18. In each case, Justice of Peace J. E.
 Shelton returned a coroner's verdict of suicide.

Court Test Looms in Controversy of Judges

AUSTIN, Tex.—(AP)—Controversy
 between district judges H. F. Kirby of the 77th district court and W. C.
 Davis of the 35th district court with reference to issuing and dissolving injunctions against officers restraining them from enforcing the state motor truck law was expected to reach the supreme court here next week in a test case.
 T. L. Tyson, county attorney of Robertson county, who was tried for contempt of court by Judge Kirby at Groesbeck Friday for refusing to obey the court injunction, was here Saturday conferring with attorneys. It was understood appellate court action

 was discussed.

 ceived an injury necessitating ampu-

Mother Acts As Aid to Son On Football Scouting Trips

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(AP)—With the football season at its height Mrs. Roy McGuire of Webster, N. Y., is well into her schedule as companion and adviser to her husky son, Gerry, on his scouting trips for the University of Rochester Yellowjackets.
 The most traveled woman sports fan in this section, Mrs. McGuire, keeps her overnight bag packed and her big car in condition to accompany Gerry on his trips.
 Before the season is over she will have traveled more than 3,000 miles
 on scouting expeditions.
 While Gerry was playing football,
 baseball and basketball for the University of Rochester during the past four years, Mrs. McGuire never missed a game at home or away, and in
 "following the team" she went 8,000 miles.
 She didn't care for victories or losses, breaks or bruises.
 She cared only to see "that 180
 pound boy I raised" give a good account of himself.
 Mrs. McGuire does the driving and Gerry takes the notes on their scouting trips, which already have taken them to several cities this fall. The two traveled to Middletown, Conn., and Hornell, N. Y., for peeks at the Wesleyan and Alfred teams in action. Before the Rochester-Williams game they were off to Williamstown, Mass., and at Clinton, N. Y., they scouted the Hamilton team.
 The other opponents of the Yellowjackets this year will be scouted on trips to Cleveland, Buffalo, Schenectady, Potsdam and Geneva.

We like the man who faces what he must
With step triumphant and a heart of cheer;
Who fights the daily battle without fear;
Sees his hopes fall, yet keeps un-faltering trust
That God is God; that somehow, true and just
His plans work out for mortals, not a tear
Is shed when fortune, which the world holds dear,
Falls from his grasp. Better with love, a crust,
Than living in dishonor, envies not
Nor loses faith in man; but does his best,
Not even murmurs at his humbler lot;
But with a smile and words of hope gives zest
To every toiler. He alone is great Who by a life heroic conquers fate.

begun Saturday morning, it was not till after 5 Sunday afternoon that it was distributed to the press. M. Laval, accompanied by two of his advisers and by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson whose guest he had been overnight, reached the White House at 10:30 a. m. and went into conference with the president on the phraseology of the communiqué. The Frenchmen examined and weighed each phrase with the utmost care. In one instance more than 30 minutes were consumed in debate on the meaning of a single word in English and its counterpart in French. All to the accompaniment of animated gesturing on the part of the president's Gallic guests.

At 1:15 p. m. Secretary Stimson left the White House saying that the statement was completed. M. Laval lingered till 2 in further talk with Mr. Hoover and the final leave taking. Returning to the Edge residence two hours later from the luncheon given in his honor by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, the premier found the typed text of the communiqué in final form and again giving it a careful examination, returned it to the president by Ogden L. Mills, under secretary of the Treasury who had acted as interpreter for Mr. Hoover. An hour later it was made public.

Helps Women Avoid Pains

MORE than half a century of successful use has shown that Cardui helps women to avoid much that they formerly suffered—misery from minor functional disturbances, monthly suffering due to a weakened condition. Cardui acts as a tonic for the system, and tends to improve the general health. It is of especial value to weak, nervous, run-down women, needing just such a strengthening medicine. Those who suffer every month should build up their strength to assist in the natural correction of the painful condition. When you need Cardui, buy a bottle and take it regularly and persistently. Perhaps several bottles will be needed. Finally, may you share the enthusiasm of the thousands of women who have said: "Cardui helped me!"

Let's talk Straight from the Shoulder

WHAT you want in a cigarette is taste. You want mildness... smoothness...and satisfying pleasure when you smoke.

All right then... get this straight.

CHESTERFIELD pays top prices for the ripest, mellowest, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows.

The curing and conditioning is done by specialists... men carefully trained in handling these fine tobaccos.

IN BLENDING, also, Chesterfields are different.

Instead of merely mixing the tobaccos together... we cross-blend them. It's like making a new and better-tasting kind of tobacco. That's how we get that Chesterfield flavor. Milder...and a more pleasing aroma.

Cigarette paper? Only the purest that's made is good enough for Chesterfield.

PICK UP a package. Note its clean appearance... free from heavy inks. It's moisture-proof, too.

And three big factories at Richmond, Durham and San Francisco—operating under the strictest sanitary standards—rush them fresh to you.

Good...they've got to be good. Because they're made that way. And most important of all...you can taste this goodness in the cigarette. You can tell it in the smoke.

Light up, Mister! Try Chesterfield.

Let the cigarette do its own talking.

You'll get the whole thrilling story, in just two words..."They Satisfy!"

"Say," Bowen exclaimed, "I've been looking everywhere for you!"

"I do know that Eddie was killed," he said, "but I don't believe it for a minute—he was made to do it by the man he owed money to."

"What do you know about the other fellow?" Kane asked suspiciously.

"The same as you do. That if Eddie had no part in that crime it's the last thing I ever do. Her small set beat the table by way of emphasis."

Kane smiled tolerantly. "I wouldn't say that, Miss Harkness. That's only a theory. You've nothing to back it up."

"Haven't I? Then I'll find something. I'm going to prove that Eddie had no part in that crime if it's the last thing I ever do. Her small set beat the table by way of emphasis."

Kane pursed his lips. "As you please, Miss Harkness," he said, "but I think you're making a big mistake. You're a very lucky girl."

"You're not a relation to the Jupiters, are you?" he asked abruptly.

"Why no," Mary replied in surprise.

Kane nodded his head sagely. "Well, for an outsider, you're sitting in the lap of Luck. If you only knew it. Those two old people set great store by you, and I understand one of the last acts of that old lady's life was to ask her lawyer to draw up adoption papers for you."

The storm of resentment that had racked Mary during Kane's revelations had left her more calmly purposeful than she had ever been in her life.

"Thank you for all you have done, Inspector," she told him with a chilly little smile, and went out quickly.

When they had ordered and sent him away, Bowen apologized.

"This is an awful dump, but it's a good place to talk. Take your things off?" He took their wet coats, the one he had loaned her and his own, and hung them to dry over the back of the two vacant chairs at their table. Then he looked about cautiously. The place was empty except for two men who rose to depart, toothpicks in mouth.

Mary said, "You're funny. What're you doing it for—to cheer me up?"

"You did look kinda dithered. Don't know what dithered is? Well, no matter. Bigger things on foot. Turning serious abruptly, he lowered his voice discreetly. "Listen. Remember when your brother was hurt, his talking about a fly?"

Mary nodded.

"Well, it kinda stuck in my mind. Thinks I'll hit myself out to the race-track some sunny afternoon and nose around. You know what? There's a race-track gambler hanging around Jamaica that everybody calls 'The Fly.'"

"Do you suppose it could be—?" He threw out his hands and shrugged. "I haven't found anybody yet that's seen him with your brother. But they all know Eddie down there. Sooner or later I'll find out what the tie-up was. Anyhow, it's a tip."

"Did you see him?"

"No, and that's a funny thing. Nobody's seen him for a couple of weeks."

Mary calculated rapidly. "It was two weeks ago tomorrow night—?"

Bowen nodded. "Correct."

Excitement kindled flames in the girl's cheeks and brought stars to her eyes.

"Oh, if it should be—?" She grasped both his hands with her own and gave them a glad squeeze. "If you help me to clear up all this trouble, I'll—I'll—I don't know what I'll do!"

"Hold it, hold it!" chided the other. "I've got a weak heart. Besides, we haven't got to first base yet in the matter of evidence."

"But we will! Oh, I know all along there was something back of this." Her face clouded again at the recollection of her recent interview with Kane. "Maybe he'll do something about it now!"

Bowen observed her bitterness, and guessed its cause.

"Listen," he told her sternly. "All I ask is—don't say a word about this to Kane."

Curiously prompted her to ask his reason.

"Well, more than one reason." They drew back while the murderous-looking waiter served their food—huge plates heaped with steaming spaghetti and meat balls. Bowen jerked a thumb after the waiter's retreating back. "Two years out of Sing Sing—him. He's got to stay where the police can keep an eye on him or go back to stir. Good guy. He wouldn't cut your throat for less than a dime."

As Mary surveyed her plate distrustfully, he added "Go ahead. Eat your lunch. Poison's not his line. But as I was saying, if we find the guy that killed your brother, I want the story—I don't want the other papers to get it. And another reason is, if the Fly is the man I think he is, it'll take more than Pretty Jim Kane to bring him in."

SPEED is thrilling

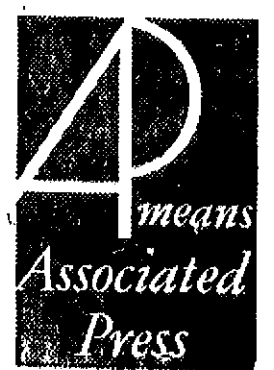

ACCURACY is Fundamental

Modern systems of communication put a new meaning on the word "speed". Never before have news dispatches moved so rapidly. Newspaper readers profit from faster, more comprehensive reports. The Associated Press utilizes these products of inventive genius not only to speed its dispatches. Far more significant are the modern facilities to provide readers of member newspapers with a better report of world happenings. News from once remote points now is handled directly and quickly by capable reporters. Staff writers are transported rapidly to the scenes of important news events for first-hand observation. Each vital angle of important stories is gathered without delay from reliable sources. There is no dependence on round-about, inaccurate reports and rumors. The Associated Press dispatches have derived from modern speed a new perfection in accuracy, completeness and reliability.

Giving the plants a longer period of rest each day brought about the earlier blooming, the florists said. The flowers were as large and richly colored as those cut in mid-season.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)
